Skin Care

This product has been a trend in skin care for quite a while now, however I just got it and I really like it. It is the Paula's choice 2%bha liquid exfoliant. It is easy to use and I find it makes a visible difference to your skin giving you a healthier-looking complexion with a nice glow. I would definitely recommend it to anyone with combination to acne prone skin.

If the Marvel cinematic universe isn't exactly your scene, the sitcom The Office, originally released in 2005, was added to Netflix's inventory in October 2021. I have just started the series, but so far; I think it's in the category of Cringe comedy and definitely enjoyable for casual viewing.

2022 Fashion Trend Predictions

As 2022 is still getting started there are still many fashion trends ahead of us. However here some predictions for trends that might be coming our way: Pinstriped and wool trousers, low rise mini skirt and maxi / cargo skirts. Catsuits also seem to be making a comeback, as well as opera gloves, maybe some mesh gloves, and of course matching sets, these could be tracksuits, jeans set, or plaid sets. Additionally, we might be seeing some leg warmers, some cut out pieces, maybe some funky/custom denim, as well as dark denim. Other materials that also seem to be gaining popularity again are crochet, metallics, feathers, flounce, and again, mesh. And finally, in terms of footwear, we might even be seeing some socks with sandals and ballet pumps as well as ballet flats.

I'm personally not a complete fan of all of these, but there are certainly lots of good fashion trends coming are way and fun new styles to try.

Art

During the pandemic I got a little more into some hobbies two of which were sketching and painting. I even did a little with friends and also created some paintings as gifts. However, now that stores are open again this hobby became even more fun, because I get to browse through art supply shops. I just love the way they are organized and all the different colours and materials. A great store is Papierkiste in Munich. The store is set up so nicely and you really get everything you need. I picked up some pencils, charcoal, a sketch pad, and even a piece of thick cardboard, which is almost like a thick piece of wood to sketch on.

Skiing

With all the new snow that fell in the alps in the beginning of 2022, skiing is definitely something I'm still looking to do this year. I learned about the area Lech-Zürs / Ski Arlberg from my dad who really enjoyed a weekend trip skiing there. He has been to many places but liked Lech for its wide choices from blue to black slopes or powder snow, and the stylish but relaxing "Hüttn" to have a break. So, if you haven't been skiing or snowboarding this year, this is a great place to go.

Indoor Skydiving

Another more out of the ordinary hobby which I've started again, now that it's possible considering the pandemic rules, is indoor skydiving. It is really fun and personally I'm getting into dynamic flying a little, however it's definitely also something you can try without any experience (with an instructor). I most often go to FlyStation in Munich, but I have also been to the Jochen Schweizer Arena, also in Munich, and both are fantastic.

Spider-Man: No Way Home

Easily one of the best movies of 2021 is Spider-Man: No Way Home. The movie directed by Jon Watts was released on December 16, 2021 and is still in movie theaters. With Spider-Man's identity now revealed, the movie depicts how his life falls into chaos, but when he turns to doctor strange for help, things seem to simply go into a downward spiral, and worlds begin to collide. Personally, watching the movie, I was fascinated by the incredible cinematography, the actors have great chemistry, and they give an amazing performance. The action sequences are tense, I laughed, I cried, and the movie was everything I needed it to be. I would recommend first watching the two previous spiderman movies starring Tom Holland in the lead, however it's not necessary. Additionally, having a movie budget of $200 million and grossing over $1 billion at the worldwide box office, you can imagine that this is a must watch.
